

JENNIFER REFAT

(917) 584-2041 – www.jenrefat.com – jrefat@gmail.com

EXPERIENCE

Web Producer, New York University Aug. 2005-Present

- Involved in all aspects of development and deployment of various verticals within nyu.edu.
- Responsibilities include implementation of design mockups to HTML/PHP pages and JSP templates, web accessibility and cross browser compatibility, documentation, writing and running through testing scripts, training of internal customers and long term support.
- Involved in evaluation of various CMS products and our eventual selection of and porting to Communiqué.

NYU Bike Share Lead Developer, New York University April 2008-Present

- Part of group to be approved for an NYU Sustainability Committee “Green Grant” for NYU Bike Share
- Designing UI and building a LAMP based bike reservation system
- Working with team consisting of administrators, developers and university staff to launch in Fall ‘10

Website Designer & Developer, Dialogue House Jan. 2005-Aug. 2005

- Redesigned intensivejournal.org (since changed) using modern aesthetics
- Coded a LAMP based website with updated standards of accessibility and cross-browser compatibility
- Maintained and updated Access DB through macros and SQL queries

SKILLS

Software

Fluent: PHP, SQL, (X)HTML, CSS | Familiar: Javascript, Java, C++ | Learning: Ruby

Operating Systems

Current: MacOS X | Familiar: Windows 95/98/2000/XP, Ubuntu

Applications

Web Server: Apache | Database Management: MySQL

Source Management: Subversion | Design Tools: Photoshop CS4, ImageReady CS4

Misc

Spoken Languages: Fluent in English and Spanish, Familiar with French

Strong verbal and written communication skills

Excellent troubleshooting and debugging skills

EDUCATION

New York University May 2008

Interactive Telecommunications Program, M.P.S., 3.7/4.0

Graduate Thesis: Craftic: Find. Make. Share.

Craftic.com is a website where users can submit, search and vote for the best tutorials online. This project involved end-to-end development of an online crafting community which fostered collaboration via Creative Commons licensed tutorials.

New York University May 2005

Computer Science, B.A., 3.4/4.0

NYU Academic Scholarship

INTERESTS

Participating in the arts and craft community, world traveling, bicycling and hiking